THE TRIBUNE

STORY OF A BEAR. - Many years ago a beau. tiful little cub bear was caught by a stout lad near the borders of Lake Winnipiscogee, in New Hampshire, carried into town, and, after proper drilling, became the play-fellow of the boys of the village, and often accompanied them to the school house. After passing a few months in civilized society, he made his escape into the woods, and after a few years was almost forgot. The school-house, meantime, had fallen from the schoolmaster's into the schoolmistress's hand; and, instead of large boys learning to write and cypher, small boys and girls were taught in the same place knitting and spelling. One winter's day, after a mild fall of snow, the door had been left open by some urchin going out, when, to the unspeakable horror of the spectacled dame and her fourscore hopeful scholars, an enormous ber walked in, in the most familiar manner in the world, and took a seat by the fire. Huddling over the benches as fast as they could, the children crowded about their schoolmistress, who had fled to the farthest corner of the room; and there they stood, crying and pushing to escape the horrer of being caten first. The bear sat snuffing and warming himself by the fire, showing great signs of satisfaction, but putting off his meal until he had warmed himself thoroughly. The screams of the children continued, but the school-house was far from any other habitation, and the bear did not seem at all embarrassed by the outery. After sitting and turning himself about for some time, Bruin got up upon his hind legs, and shoving to the door, began to take down, one by one, the hats, bonnets, and satchels that hung on several rows of pegs behind it. His memory had not deceived him, for they contained, as of old, the children's dinners, and he had arrived before the holidays. Having satis. fied himself with their cheese, bread, pies, doughnuts, and apples, Bruin smelt at the mistress's desk; but finding it locked, gave himself a shake of resignation, opened the door, and disappeared. The alarm was given, and the amiable creature was pursued and killed, very much to the regret of the town's people, when it was discovered, by some marks on its body, that it was their old friend and play fellow.

LEGISLATIVE ELOQUENCE.—The Jackson correspondence of the Vicksburg Whig, gives the following as a verbatim et literatum speech delivered in the Mississippi Legislature, by Mr. Lindsev, of Itawamba : Mr. Speaker, in fixin the salaries of officers, Mr. Speaker, in fixin the salaries of officers, we have in view all the citizens of Massissippi, and we have not in view a portion of the citizens of Massissippi. I hearn it said that high Judges should get high salaries because they had to study a long time before they get to be Judges. But I aint a guine to believe a word of that, for I know as soon as a young man begins to study law he goes to practice and gits rich directly. I would like to know how long a young man would have to study law before he gets to practice, why, right away, sir. But I don't oppose a man because he is rich, nor I don't oppose a man because he is rich, nor I don't oppose a man because he is rich, nor I don't oppose a man because he is rich, nor I don't oppose him because he is poor; no, sir, for this is the reason, sir, why this great nation of our looks down with pride upon all other nations of the yearth. But, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think all men when they form a social compact is in all equal and alike, and this, sir, I think a sufficient reason, sir, to reduce the salaries of these Judges, and I hope, sir, the members of this floor, will go for my amendment. Mr. Speaker, I'm not a guine to make a long speech for two reasons, sir, one is that I don't know much, and tother is, it don't take me long to tell what I do throw. Gentlemen, I am much obliged to you.

POINTED SERMONS .- More than one hundred years ago there graduated at Harvard University a man by the name of Rawson, who subsequently settled in the ministry at Yarmouth, on Cape Cod. He used to preach very pointed sermons. Hav-ing heard that some of his parishioners were in the habit of making him the subject of their mirth at a grop-shop, he one Sabbath preached a discourse from the text, "And I was the song of the drunkard." His remarks were of a very moving character, so much so that many of his hearers rose and left the house in the midst of the sermon. A short time afterwards, the preacher delivered a discourse still more pointed than the first, from the text, "And they, being convicted out of their own consciences went out one by one." On this occasion no one ventured to retire from the assembly, but the guilty ones resigned themselves with as good grace as possible, to the lash of their NOTICE—Sufficient is it in answer to the advertisement that appears to the contrary, that we not only have the Tools of John Conger, 33 Attorney-street, New-York, for sale as here advertised, but we also have the genuine warrant in all respects equal, if not superior, to John Conger's.

And as the said John Conger has manifested so much feeling in relation to our selling Tools that are not his make, we deem it but justice, for the information of the public, to say that the said John Conger learned his trade with the father of said John P. Conger. And as for proof of the quality of the Tools made by John P. Conger, we have abundance; and they do not require the name of John Conger, 33 Attorney-street, to make them saleable.

Again drawn before the public by one who takes the method of creating for himself notoriety by vilifying his neighbors, we once more reiterate that we not only have, but shall continue to keep. John Conger's Tools to meet all the demands of our customers, and we farther say that that part of his advertisement, which asserts the contrary is untrue, and in conclusion we would suggest to said Conger that it is a dang-rous expedient to attempt to build one's own reputation by seeking to destroy another's, and that when it becomes necessary to employ spies, the services of those only should be secured who have been thoroughly trained and tested to accomplish their object, lest in the attempt they betray not only themselves but their employer;—in regard to ourselves, not believing in or subscribing to the doctrine of intention, we have not said any thing but what was strictly true, nor any thing but what was mean as those who have dealt with us have ever found, and those who choose to do so by calling will ever find.

This is not a new medicine. It has been known for years, and its healing influences have been felt by thousands in the vicinity where it has been sold. But no effort has ever before been made to introduce it to the public at large by means of the press. It has been left to work its way silently by its own intrinsic merits, and to depend for its celebrity upon actual experience and the wonderful cures it has effected. The extent of these, and the high and just reputation which it has thus acquired, are manifest from hundreds of testimonials.
Toluntarily lumished to the proprietor by gentlemen of the pratefully recommend it; ladies have derived the greatest benefit from its exhibition in nervous and other complaints; epicures are restored to their appetite; and the weak and feeble are made strong and vigorous. "Health, the poor man's riches — the rich mun's bliss," has, through its influence, been extended to all classes and conditions—mechanics and manufacturers, merchants and bankers, lawyers and divines, philosophers, poets and planters, have all been cured by this medicine, as their certificates and recommendations satisfactorily prove. Yet thousands upon thousands remain who are daily suffering torture, both of mind and body, from the above complaints, when an infallable remedy is offered to them in the Restorative Cordial, which is prepared by C.
